

LOCAL NEWS.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, JUNE 4.

For this section continued high temperatures, with showers this afternoon on the coast, and light winds.

THE FIREMEN.—Many of the public buildings and a number of private residences of the city are gaily decorated with flags and bunting in honor of the Virginia State Firemen's Association, which met in this city at the Opera House this evening. There have already arrived G. C. Cummins, of Portsmouth, secretary, and E. Vance, of Norfolk, treasurer of the association. (Mr. J. C. Creighton, of this city, is the president.) Chief Mountcastle in charge of a delegation of firemen from Richmond; R. C. Marshall, of R. L. Herbert, of Chambers company, of Portsmouth; Thos. Keilly, of Norfolk; W. W. R. of Hampton; Jas. McFall, of delegation from Roanoke, &c. Delegates from Danville, Norfolk, Charlottesville and Petersburg are a present and others from Berkeley are expected to-morrow. The Junior Hose Company, of Roanoke, have brought with them their hose carriage but were much disappointed in the band which they had engaged being unable to come. President C. T. Holloway, of the Veteran Fire Association, of Baltimore, is expected here to-morrow to take part in the parade.

The citizens and especially the ladies are invited to attend the sessions of the association.

At 2 o'clock this evening the Association was called to order by the President, J. C. Creighton, who introduced Mayor Downham, who addressed the Association as follows:

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Convention: It seems to have been the custom of the chief executive officers of the different cities where the General Council Virginia State Firemen's Association have met to deliver an address of welcome. It is particularly appropriate on this occasion, when you meet in a town, whose firemen's rolls bear the name of the most illustrious of all the illustrious sons of America. I mean the immortal Washington, who was a member of the Fire Company, of this city, organized in 1774; and I am glad to say an organization still in existence, and will participate in our parade to-morrow. Under these circumstances I assure you I appreciate the honor the occasion imposes, and I bid you gentlemen of the convention, a most cordial and hearty welcome. It is with additional pleasure and pride I do so, when I reflect I am addressing representatives of a class of men, who for true courage and unshaken history does not record superiors. We are glad to have you with us and will endeavor to make your stay in our midst such as will enable you to cherish none but the fondest recollections for the firemen of Alexandria and their friends. I trust your deliberations here may be so conducted and of such a character that will insure for all time the financial and beneficial success of your association. I trust the time is not far distant when the Legislature will pass a law imposing taxes upon the corporations who are directly benefited by your labors, and the exposure to which you gentlemen are subject to, for your protection. So when you risk your lives for those who are in danger you can do so with the knowledge that should you fall, (as many have, and the oft ason shafts to their memory indicate) adequate provision has been made for those dependent upon you. I am reminded that in a cemetery a little to the west of our city a shaft is reared to brave firemen and marking a calamity which is fresh in the minds of our old citizens. I say the men who thus expose their lives, without fee or reward, should be protected by law, so that when the alarm is sounded and they leave the bedside of their loved ones, they do so with the knowledge that in event of their death they will be protected; and I say further, that when associations who receive the almost exclusive benefits from their labors fail to recognize them in some substantial manner, should by the law of the commonwealth be compelled to do so, and particularly is this suggestive of foreign insurance companies, who have millions of dollars of risks in this country. A tax imposed upon them to form an insurance for the benefit of the families of firemen who have been disabled or killed in the discharge of duty would, I think, be one step forward. I thank you, gentlemen, for your kind attention, and bid again a hearty welcome.

On behalf of the Association Col. R. C. Marshall, of Portsmouth, responded in the happiest manner, returning thanks for the cordial greeting the Association had met.

The committee on credentials was then appointed and soon made a report, which was adopted.

Mr. R. Belcher, of Prince William, read a paper on his patent fire escape.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer were then read and approved.

The election of officers will probably take place to-night.

The banquet to the visiting firemen will be given at the Braddock House to-morrow night and not on Friday night, as was at first intended.

Among the speakers at the banquet will be Messrs. G. A. Muehbach, S. G. Brent, L. Marbury, J. M. Johnson and W. F. Carne.

From the secretary's report for the year ending June 1, 1889, it is learned that at that time there were 334 members of the Association in good standing; amount of money received, $1,305.50, and amount paid out for relief, $155.50.

Each of the delegates are accompanied by their wives and children.

On Friday the visiting firemen will be tendered an excursion to Mount Vernon on the new steamer Charles Maclester.

The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $113.
